ALBERTA'S DRIVE FOR TOURISTS' DOLLARS

Alberta would experience a new wave of business progress and prosperity if the tourist industry were greatly expanded, in the opinion of officials of the Alberta Motor Association.

Just imagine what it would do to local trade in all sections of the province if $30,000,000 were spent here annually. Well, that is a possibility if the tourist trade were developed to a point that is fully warranted by the beauties and scenic attractions of this province.

The federal bureau of statistics has calculated that each tourist spends on the average about $15. Thus, if 2,000,000 people were induced to visit Alberta, the $30,000,000 mark would be reached.

There is hardly a line of business which serves the motoring public, directly or indirectly, that would not benefit by such an inflow of traffic.

The primary producer, i.e. the farmer, would be the one who would especially benefit, finding a ready cash market for his products.

This new found cash would immediately circulate through trade channels, giving new impetus to business and creating an all-round condition of new prosperity.

Motor club officials say that it has been demonstrated time and again that places which are popular tourist centres continue to grow. At such points, commercial activities thrive on the tourist's dollar, and there is a tendency at all times to improve services to meet the growing demands of the community.

What can be done in one centre can be made of general application when the volume of tourist traffic is properly and soundly developed.

Thus it is that the A.M.A. maintains its campaign for hard-surfaced roads in this province, to give Alberta her rightful place among the provinces in point of tourist trade, and nowhere in Alberta is hard-surfaced highways of greater interest to tourists and more urgently needed than between Pincher and Crows' Nest.

ABERHART IN EDMONTON

Aberhart in Edmonton declared that the government's record justified another term. Well, where and for how long?

Marking the visit of the King and Queen to the province of Alberta, the government recently issued a new booklet through the Hon. Ernest C. Manning, the provincial secretary, which was of a very high order, indeed. The brochure, which was some twenty pages in size, portrayed in picture and in story the beauties and marvelous natural resources of the province as a whole. This booklet will amply justify its purpose as a tourist folder. The booklet was executed in the plant of the Metropolitan Printing Company Limited, in which R. A. Godson is manager, and it presents one of the finest pieces of publicity matter issued by the government.

New Kind Of Clock

Maintains Accuracy To Within One Second During 24 Hours

A new kind of clock so accurate under ordinary conditions that it may help astronomers to aim their telescopes with higher precision and engineers to control difficult variations in alternating current, was demonstrated at San Francisco.

The instrument was developed by Henry Warren, Ashland, Mass., electrical clock manufacturer, who is a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Warren acknowledged that the three main kinds of time standards now generally in use—the ordinary pendulum clock, the vibrating quartz crystal and the electrically driven tuning fork—were more accurate than his own creation, but said they either had to be maintained with utmost care or were subject to breakdowns or outside influences.

He presented a graph showing his instrument maintained accuracy to within one second at all times during a 24-hour stretch.

The main part of Warren's instrument is a specially made wire which is forced to vibrate at a relatively constant rate, with changes in temperature, electrical influence and other adverse factors.

Ordinarily, a wire hanging downward from some object to which it is attached will not vibrate at a constant rate because of many interfering factors.

A Lost Continent

Geologist Is Making Plans To Prove It Really Existed

Many geologists think that a lost continent lies beneath the waters of the Atlantic Ocean. Now Dr. Maurice Evans has devised a means of submarine exploration which he has adopted by oil prospectors and intends to look for the long lost island, which was called Appalachia.

He will sink small charges of TNT, detonate them by electricity and record the vibrations when they are reflected back from the rocky bed. He will then capture certain fragments from the explosion and by means of these try to trace positive geological formations.

It is hoped that the evidence will enable him to say whether part of the Atlantic bed was once a continental close to Europe.—London Times.

National Parks

Camera Replacing Rifle As Weapon Of Big Game Hunters

The Duke of Gloucester told the society for the preservation of fauna of the Empire, that Canada has led the way in establishment of national parks.

The King's brother recalled that King George and Queen Elizabeth enjoyed "what little rest and recreation they were able to take" during their Canadian tour in the two great Dominion parks—Banff and Jasper.

Aeroplane For The King

Medium-Sized Airplane Is Being Constructed In England

Work has now begun on the new aeroplane, ordered by the King, for his personal use. It is a standard "Flamingo," except for interior furnishings and other details.

The cabin, which is air-conditioned, is particularly large. The type of aircraft: 7 feet 4 inches wide and 6 feet 7 inches high. The available cabin length for all purposes is 24 feet 2 inches.

The high wing will shade the sun from the Royal passengers and at the same time give them unobstructed vision. The door will be only 27 inches above the ground, so there will be no flight of steps to climb on entering the plane.

The volume of air in the cabin will be changed every two minutes and the temperature controlled by steam heaters.

The "Flamingo" is of all-metal construction. A feature is the way in which many major component parts on the port and starboard sides are interchangeable. It will be possible to change a complete power unit in two hours and remove a wing in one hour. The wheels will be changed in only a few minutes.

The "Flamingo" is a medium capacity airliner and during the summer several of these new British machines will be flying.

It is claimed that they will be better than anything of this type produced in the United States which hitherto have had a monopoly of it.

Previously British firms had been handicapped in the production of this class of machine as they had to compete with foreign aircraft manufacturers who were subsidized by their governments. Now that the British Imperial attitude towards subsidies has been modified, it is felt that foreign competition can be met on equal terms.

The new airliners are high-wing twin-engine monoplanes, each engine of 800 h.p. They have a cruising speed of 210 m.p.h. and a range of 1,250 miles, carrying a payload of 1,725 pounds.

The machines, which will take from 12 to 20 passengers, will have unusually high factors of safety. They will be able to climb on only one engine, even at full load, and they have remarkable controllability in single-engine flight.

A new type of rudder control is used which will enable the machine, when only one engine is running, to make a turn against the active engine, an important safety factor.

The King's Visit

His Majesty Able To Capture The Esteem Of People In Responsible Positions

It would be a great mistake to suppose that the success of the Canadian, and still more of the American visit of Their Majesties was altogether due to their ability to look pleasant and say the correct thing in a long series of brief official contacts.

The public at large had not much opportunity to judge of any but the merely pleasant and ingratiating sides of the Royal character; but it is not those superficial qualities which made so deep an impression on a great number of American statesmen of national importance, from President Roosevelt and Secretary Cordell Hull to Senator Borah and Mayor LaGuardia.

What the King and Queen did and said to engage so rapidly and completely the interest and esteem of those astute personages we shall not precisely know, for etiquette does not encourage the prompt revelation of private conversations of kings. But we may take their behavior as proof conclusive that they found in George VI qualities much deeper than those of the ordinary public was given a glimpse in his official appearances.—Toronto Saturday Night.

HOME SERVICE

BRIGHT HAND-WOVEN RUG YOU CAN EASILY MAKE

Use Homemade Loom

How to make and colorful this hand-woven rug—with its greens, pink, lavenders, yellows.

And you can weave it yourself on a homemade loom, using odd bits of chair legs.

To make the loom, nail together a simple oblong frame of four wooden sticks and take strips of burlap to the edges.

Now the burlap is stretched over a portal twine through the burlap strips, forming a "warp."

For the weaving, use a long piece of chair leg or four inches wide, fold in raw edges. Double first strip and, using both ends, weave a braid-like pattern as in diagram. One end goes over, the other under, the other goes over.

Quickly the "warp" avenges itself and your rug when finished is as pretty on one side as the other.

Just as you weave, wear a coat of paint, then wash it.

Now lay it out in your copy of "How to Weave Useful Novelties" to Home Service Dept., Winnipeg News-Paper Union, 175 McDermot Ave. E., Winnipeg.

Double Taxation

U.S. And Canadian Government Officials Carry On Negotiations

United States and Canadian government officials are carrying on negotiations at Ottawa, which opened in Washington several months ago, on the possibility of establishing a convention between the countries for relief of double taxation.

A person taxed in the country where the money was earned would not be taxed again in the country of receipt if negotiations are successful.

Must Have A Reason

I was going home very late after a show the other night when I came across two chaps sitting on the edge of the pavement with their feet in the mud.

One of them, a young man, was writing in a notebook. I stopped and asked him what he was doing.

"I'm writing a story," he said. "I've got a good idea."

"Then why do you stay out late like this?"

"Because I have to earn my living," he said.

The fact that the whole world recently conducted a poll on impressions held by the public with respect to the visit of the King and Queen to Canada.

The poll indicated, by a wide margin, the opinion that the outstanding incident of the visit was the uncheduled and unannounced mingling of Their Majesties with the crowd at Ottawa following the unveiling ceremony at the War Memorial on May 21.

That was the occasion on which the Royal pair, their official duties of the occasion done, stepped down from their place on a platform to meet personally some of the assembled war veterans, war mothers and nursing sisters.

Thereafter they moved round and about the memorial enclosure, which was soon so completely occupied by the crowd that the King and Queen became separated from guards and escort.

Greeting and talking with one another, they moved first around what had been a circle, then down the streets, passing their car which was ready and waiting to take them away, but not returning to it until an hour or so afterwards.

Still Experimenting

To Produce Smaller Turkey For Average American Family

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's poultry geneticists are still experimenting to produce a turkey that will be small enough to fit the small ovens that fit the small apartments that fit the small incomes of the small American families of to-day. This used to be a country of big things, where big families lived in big houses and had big appetites. A fifty-pound turkey was merely a gastronomical incident to a Thanksgiving dinner. The bright young man who started out in Washington six years ago to experiment with turkeys determined to remodel it on a smaller scale all round.

He made no amenities of greeting. "I have come for Sarah Lynn," he said simply. "Twelve days I have been coming to her; I can no longer wait." He made a slight gesture toward the governess who had delayed him. "I will take her with me. Once the doctors do not allow— I stay outside until the car goes." The small sentence came out roughly, hammered into crude shape on an avial of strong feeling. "I should not have gone; she turned from me, she sent me away, but it was the pain, the drug. Now I know. I flew away, but—" he groped for words—"but I did not leave her; always she was with me, land, sea, air, in my work, eating, sleeping. To forget was my wish. 'It is finished,' I said, but it was not finished. So, now, I come again. If she says, 'Never fly, then I do not fly. I take her or I stay beside her.' He stopped talking and turned toward the door. "Now I go to her."

Conrad Jordan was on his feet. "Stop, Gunnar! Wait! You don't understand!"

The tall youth nodded. "I understand. She will shrink from me still!" His face worked. "At first maybe. No matter. I go to her."

The older sier said desperately, "Gunnar, I must tell you—"

He gave a muffled cry. "She loves?"

"Yes, but she"—he laid a hand on Gunnar's arm but he shook it off, striding toward the door.

Mary Dana Webster who blocked him said,

"Gunnar—wait! I've got to tell you—you've got to tell me. Sarah Lynn is well again. She's been walking for weeks, now, and she won't even be lame. But—" she cut through his shout of joy—"Gunnar, listen to me!"

IF YOU FEEL SUNK

Read this and cheer up

Are you so blue that life is no longer worth living? Are you so tired, so worn out, so mean, depressed—just absolutely SUNK?

Then there's good news for you in case you need cheering up. The famous Lydia E. Pilkham's Vegetable Compound is the best medicine to help Nature build up more physical resistance. It helps you to live longer, more easily throw off the "blues" and give more energy.

MILLIONS of women have depended upon this Compound to help prevent colds and to their children. "I never take Pitkham's Compound and go smiling thru!"

me! She's going to marry Duncan Van Doren next week."

Gim Jung, the cat-footed Chinese second-boy, came padding up the stairs to tell Mrs. Dana that a lady was calling, and she went down to find Ardine standing in the hall. The serene sunniness of her face clouded over a trifle. Ardine had never come to see Sarah Lynn in all her long imprisonment, although expensive flowers had arrived at the hospital with the card of Mr. and Mrs. Keaton Dana.

Ardine did not even return the thinly gracious greeting. "I thought you'd like to know," she said. "Gunner Thorwald is back." She was out of breath with hurrying, and her hot-looking hands with their crimson marks were trembling.

"What?"

"Here, I saw him just now, going into Lynn Dana's house."

Mrs. Dana drew herself up with the ancient gesture of a lady putting an upstairs in her place. She was milk-white. "Thank you. I—I appreciate your thoughtfulness, not, of course, that it could make any difference now, but—"

Ardine lifted one full shoulder in a languid shrug. "All right. I just thought you'd like to know." She let herself out of the front door.

CHAPTER XVI.

Mr. Dana's rhythmic breathing was interrupted by three telephone calls. She rose swiftly at each bell before a servant could answer, and said the same things in turn to Mary Dana Webster, Sally Ann, and Lynn Dana.

"No, I will not call her," she stated firmly. "No, I will not give her that message. There is absolutely no point in telling her: it can make no difference now in her plans . . . I tell you it would make no difference—it is simply that I do not wish to have her disturbed and distressed by the revival of painful memories . . . No . . . No!"

She turned to find Gim Jung, the cat-footed Chinese second-boy. "Gim Jung, telephone ring; I am to stop for the night; that town is the one in which you would like to spend your vacation; that town is the kind of a town you would like to retire to when the retiring time of life comes."

"All right," he agreed, inquisitorial almond eyes on her face. "I call."

"Maybe letter come, maybe telegram, Miss Sarah Lynn, never mind, bring to me!"

"All right," he said again. "I bring."

Dana and his sons came home to dinner and it was a merry meal. Once the door-bell rang and Gim Jung said mysteriously, "Miss Dana, you come!" and Mrs. Dana hurried to the reception-hall, her heart slipping in her breast, to find a high school youth in a soiled sweatshirt asking for young Bill. He was embarrassed by the warmth of her greeting.

After their always formal coffee in the dining room, usually separated by the older sons or on their own occasions, the youngest reluctantly to his books, the husband to a directors' meeting at the San Jose Chamber of Commerce, and the mother went upstairs with Duncan and Sarah Lynn.

Duncan read a solid biography aloud in his pleasantly modulated cultured voice and Sarah Lynn leaned back in her chair, her hands loosely clasped in her lap, her eyes half closed. The pretty room was quiet and warmly and softly lit; the canaries' cages were covered with gay chintz and the Persian kittens were asleep in their nests. The decorative French photographs of plump babies looked down from the walls in dewy innocence, and Mrs. Dana began to have a sense of safety, of sanctuary so complete that she started in on her rhythmic breathing again.

Then the door opened without a preliminary knock and Miss Pennington walked in. The harad color had drained out of her hand, round cheeks and her pale eyes appeared to protrude farther than ever. She stood still in the middle of the room.

"Sarah Lynn," she said abruptly, "Gunner Thorwald is here."

Sarah Lynn gave a muffled cry, her clenched hands at her mouth.

"Hush, Miss Pennington!" he counted off

the days on his slender fingers.

"And everything finished and ready now!" Mrs. Dana said with an odd laugh. "You could—you could be married tomorrow—or this evening!"

"That's an idea!" Duncan agreed foolishly. "Why not?"

Sally Lynn said, "Your family won't be here until Monday. She waited for Duncan to move.

"Of course!" her mother said. "We couldn't disappoint them. But if you should want a romantic elopement—Everything's ready, even to the license!"

Duncan deliberated with his knight. "Not our line, is it, Sarah Lynn? Old and settled and sedate—" he moved the pieces.

Sarah Lynn's hand hovered over the board, hesitated, came to rest on the table's edge. She spoke in a voice they had not heard for a long time. "Duncan, are you very sure? I mean, are you satisfied?"

"Of course I am," he said quickly. "Your play?"

"I haven't tricked you, have I?" she went on. "You said you'd be compelled to make a lot of money some day. I think it's just a few months, Duncan."

She looked at him steadily. Sally Lynn would have seen a crack in the celophane. "Are you sure?"

He gave her a hand pat. "I'm sure you're going to beat me in a minute!"

After a pause Sarah Lynn made her move. "Check!" she said in her usual voice.

Her mother went to her own room and talked agitatedly over the telephone to Aunt Helena. The family seerses was startled but she pulled her serenity over her head like a sweater. Dear Adelaide was to lie down at once without a pillow, with an ice towel over her eyes, and relax, drawing long rhythmic breaths. That was not the slightest cause for alarm. The intruder would have been from Lynn Dana of Sarah Lynn's impending marriage and he would go again.

The decorative French photographs of plump babies looked down from the walls in dewy innocence, and Mrs. Dana began to have a sense of safety, of sanctuary so complete that she started in on her rhythmic breathing again.

Then the door opened without a preliminary knock and Miss Pennington walked in. The harad color had drained out of her hand, round cheeks and her pale eyes appeared to protrude farther than ever. She stood still in the middle of the room.

"Sarah Lynn," she said abruptly, "Gunner Thorwald is here."

Sarah Lynn gave a muffled cry, her clenched hands at her mouth.

"Hush, Miss Pennington!" he counted off

the days on his slender fingers.

"And everything finished and ready now!" Mrs. Dana said with an odd laugh. "You could—you could be married tomorrow—or this evening!"

"That's an idea!" Duncan agreed foolishly. "Why not?"

Sally Lynn said, "Your family won't be here until Monday. She waited for Duncan to move.

"Of course!" her mother said. "We couldn't disappoint them. But if you should want a romantic elopement—Everything's ready, even to the license!"

Duncan deliberated with his knight. "Not our line, is it, Sarah Lynn? Old and settled and sedate—" he moved the pieces.

Sarah Lynn's hand hovered over the board, hesitated, came to rest on the table's edge. She spoke in a voice they had not heard for a long time. "Duncan, are you very sure? I mean, are you satisfied?"

"Of course I am," he said quickly. "Your play?"

"I haven't tricked you, have I?" she went on. "You said you'd be compelled to make a lot of money some day. I think it's just a few months, Duncan."

She looked at him steadily. Sally Lynn would have seen a crack in the celophane. "Are you sure?"

He gave her a hand pat. "I'm sure you're going to beat me in a minute!"

After a pause Sarah Lynn made her move. "Check!" she said in her usual voice.

Her mother went to her own room and talked agitatedly over the telephone to Aunt Helena. The family seerses was startled but she pulled her serenity over her head like a sweater. Dear Adelaide was to lie down at once without a pillow, with an ice towel over her eyes, and relax, drawing long rhythmic breaths. That was not the slightest cause for alarm. The intruder would have been from Lynn Dana of Sarah Lynn's impending marriage and he would go again.

"No, I will not call her," she stated firmly. "No, I will not give her that message. There is absolutely no point in telling her: it can make no difference now in her plans . . . I tell you it would make no difference—it is simply that I do not wish to have her disturbed and distressed by the revival of painful memories . . . No . . . No!"

She turned to find Gim Jung, the cat-footed Chinese second-boy.

"Gim Jung, telephone ring; I am to stop for the night; that town is the one in which you would like to spend your vacation; that town is the kind of a town you would like to retire to when the retiring time of life comes."</p

HOUSEHOLD SERVICE
DIPLOMAS GIVEN

Graduation ceremonies were held at the dominion-provincial youth training centre, home service school in Calgary recently, when Mrs. Edith Gostick, M.L.A., presented interim certificates to eighteen girls who have completed their three months of training, and final certificates to ten girls who have completed three months of satisfactory service since leaving the school.

Mrs. Gostick congratulated the students in their choice of career and said homemaking was one of the most important jobs in the world.

Under the direction of Miss Marjorie Potts, a very creditable ginnastic display was presented by the girls.

Dr. W. G. Carpenter complimented the girls on the evidence of excellent training and the happy relations between staff and students.

Mrs. Margaret Lewis, chairman of the women's committee, presided and spoke of the service the training school had achieved.

Applications for entrance to the school may be made to Employment Service of Canada, 126 Seventh Ave. W., Calgary.

TILL THE DOCTOR COMES

Aberhart: "People should learn to be patient." Of all the jokes of all time it is the greatest. If the patience of Alberta people has not been amply tried and found true in that four years, there is no such thing as patience.

A LOCAL ESSAY ON CATS

The following essay on "Cats" was turned in by a ten-year-old pupil of the local school just before the holidays:

Cats and people are funny animals. Cats have four paws, but only one mother. People have fore fathers, but only one mother. When a cat smells a rat, he gets excited; so do people. Cats carry tails, and a lot of people carry tales, too. All cats have fur coats. Some people have fur coats, and the ones who don't have fur coats say caty things about the ones who do have them."

WHAT YOU CAN LEARN FROM YOUR DOG

To keep clean.
To love children.
To keep your place.
To chase away flies.
To size up an enemy.
To be faithful unto death.
To be a dependable friend.
To take plenty of exercise.
To express pleasure when favored.
To speak when you want a thing.
To stay where it is winter in winter and cool in summer.
To guard faithfully the interests of those who care for you.

In the district south and east of Pincher Creek for quite a number of years sloughs have been in the habit of drying up or disappearing before midsummer. This past spring one of the sloughs became abnormally large, and looked so "promising" that it was decided to name it "Lake Social Credit," which according to Webster means "for but a little while."

An added attraction at the special CFAC studio at the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede is a gold-plated microphone used by Their Majesties during their recent tour of Canada and the United States. There were three of these microphones in all, one known to radio men as a "saltshaker" and the other two "Cardioids." They were all gold-plated, and were used exclusively by Their Majesties. The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation was kind enough to loan one of them for display on this occasion.

Among the 100 Alberta pioneers or 1890 or earlier to gather at Scarboro United church, Calgary, recently for a reunion were the following from Pincher Creek: Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Ambrose (1888 and 1882) and Mrs. J. E. Girona (1888).

Jack Eddy, of Beaver Mines district, is enjoying a visit from his brother Fred, who left here in 1914 for the Three Hills farming district, and in 1922 moved from Alberta to California, where he now resides. Mr. Eddy was among the pioneers of the Crows' Nest Pass, having come to the foothills in 1891, and was engaged with the crew that surveyed the right-of-way for the Crows' Nest Pass line of the C.P.R. Since arriving on this visit, he is availing himself of the opportunity of meeting old timers and renewing acquaintances. Mr. Eddy, who is around the 78-mark, is accompanied by a sister who is 75.

BROADCASTING THE ROYAL VISIT

Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's Empire Day programme, with greetings from His Majesty's subjects in all parts of the British Commonwealth of Nations, culminating in the Winnipeg address of H. M. the King, has been designated by editors and listeners everywhere as one of the most notable achievements of the C.B.C. The month-long series of Royal Visit broadcasts has also been acclaimed in editorials as well as by thousands of listeners. Above, His Majesty is seen seated before C.B.C.'s Royal microphones, speaking from Winnipeg to the Empire on May 24th, 1939. Top left is a picture of the microphone stand used by His Majesty during the dedication and unveiling of the National Memorial at Ottawa on May 21st. The rostrum, top right, is the one used by Her Majesty the Queen at the ceremony during the laying of the corner stone of the new Supreme Court Building at Ottawa on May 20th. The bottom pictures show the three microphones within the rostrum, left; and, at the right, as they were concealed during the broadcasts.

FROM THEIR MAJESTIES

BROADCASTING

THE ROYAL VISIT

(Observations by C. W. Gilchrist, CBC Press Representative, who accompanied the Royal tour)

"... And for their Canada be watchful ever—

Grant us this boon if there be one alone,

To do our part in high and pure endeavour

To build a peaceful Empire round the Throne."

As the words of this prayer travelled down the airways on the evening of June 15th, while far out to sea the Empress of Britain disappeared from view in the early summer dusk, there ended for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation a month-long stewardship.

It was the biggest effort in the history of radio broadcasting, the task of bringing to millions of listeners in Canada and throughout the world, day by day as the triumphal tour progressed, accurate word pictures of events and scenes.

BOLTON—BENNETT

The Pro-Cathedral of the Redeemer, Calgary, was the scene of a quiet wedding on Saturday, July 8th, when Emily May, daughter of Mr. William Bennett and the late Mrs. Bennett, of Lundbreck, Alberta, became the bride of Mr. William Bolton, of Turner Valley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bolton, of Calgary. The marriage lines were read by Rev. Alexander Patterson.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a charming afternoon dress of Regina crepe, with a draped bodice and full skirt, and a corsage of madame butterfly roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Myrtle Bennett, wearing a printed silk frock with a pleated bodice and flared skirt, and a corsage of sweetheart roses and cornflowers. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Jim Bolton.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride for the immediate families and friends. The table, centred with a three-tiered wedding cake, was trimmed with pink and white streamers.

After spending a honeymoon in Spokane and Seattle, Mr. and Mrs. Bolton will make their home in Turner Valley.

Country versus City

From the economic aspect of the question, one is often tempted to wonder why there should be any influx of rural residents to metropolitan centres in Canada as well as in the United States. When one balances the advantages of life in the country, which means in the small town or village as well as on the farm, with that of life in the greater population centres, one feels a strong urge to plump for country life.

In normal times, of course, there is always an infiltration of restless and ambitious youth from country to city and there is also a fairly constant migration of the elderly who imagine they prefer to spend their declining years in surroundings which, however, many find later, are not so congenial as they fondly anticipated.

In difficult times, such as those experienced with great acuteness in Western Canada in the past decade, this tendency to migrate from the country to the city is accelerated by whole families who have found living conditions in the country impossible and who seek refuge in the larger centres in the expectation that they can better themselves.

Set aside the problem of those who make the change in habitat because of personal ambition and there are left the considerable number who voluntarily move from the face of the small town to the centres of dense population in the expectation that in the cities they will enjoy amenities, pleasures and social contacts which, they believe, are unobtainable in rural surroundings. It is possible, however, that reflection will demonstrate that life in the country can be as amenable, or more, so, than in the cities.

What's A Hick Town?

The argument was well presented in an American publication recently by Lee W. McHenry when he wrote:

"Where do they get that word 'Hick' anyway?"

"Last week organizers working to persuade the people of a neighbor hood to vote for daylight saving started their public with the slogan, 'Vote for Daylight Saving and Keep Our Town out of the Hick Town Class.'

"Obviously it was the intention of the slogan makers to convey the impression that a 'hick town' is something to be looked down upon, the kind of a town we would not want to live in."

"From long usage the term 'hick town' used when by city dwellers, has come to mean a rural, farming community.

"The 'hicks' are the people of order, so uncouth, so undesirable about a rural farming community?"

"Well, let us see. In the first place the 'hick town' is a community where the air is fresh and pure, free from the smoke and gas and filth of city streets; in the 'hick town' you know your neighbors and neighbor them—usually you don't have to lock your doors at night; the churches and school are still the outstanding institutions of these communities; there is grass everywhere for the children to play on; they don't have to travel to a park or play on the pavement; there are birds and flowers, the natural ones, not the park variety, to be seen and enjoyed; there is peace and quiet and confidence. More and more those dwellers who can afford it are moving out to 'hick towns' to live and raise their families."

"Politics in the 'hick town' are not complicated by the partnership of this or that political group with the underworld of vice, gambling, booze. The 'hick town' doesn't have to go through the periodical wave of moral reform when a 'clean up' is made just before the election in order to catch the church vote—and then allowed to die a natural death as soon as the shooting is over and the elected city administration again needs persons spending money and a place to 'mete out justice' and plot and plan and indulge in the very pastimes that so roundly disturbed a short time before."

From the Hick Towns

"Business leaders will tell you that their smartest and most reliable men and women workers were boys and girls from the 'hick towns'. You don't hear the 'hick towns' walling about their impending bankruptcy unless the state or national government helps solve their financial problems. There is—but what's the use. We could go on and on."

"If by a 'hick town' those campaign organizers mean what 'hick town' usually does, if they mean a community which takes its time and minds its own business and is not always bellinger for something or about something and that's a good place to live and do business, where the people don't get all 'hot up' day in and day out about new frits in style and the stock markets, then thank God, we live and will live in a 'hick town'. Pooling Railway Traffic

Claim Major Savings Effected For Railways in Britain

Pooling of all competitive traffic has accomplished major savings for the railways of Great Britain, C. E. R. Sherrington, secretary of the railway research service of the British railways, said in Toronto, in an address to the accounting division of the Association of American Railroads.

The amalgamation of traffic services had not eliminated competition and most of the great trade routes were still served by two systems, he said, adding that bus investments were the most remunerative branch of railway activity in Britain. In addition the railways owned large fleets of road freight vehicles.

Stockholm, Sweden, will replace all trolley cars with motor buses.

Earth-Slowing Down

Astronomers Predict Lengthening Of Our Days As A Result

A day 47 times the length of our day was predicted by the Astronomer Royal in a lecture at Oxford recently. His subject was "The Earth as a Clock," and he described the installation at Greenwich of a new quartz clock which it was hoped would be a better timekeeper than the earth.

He spoke of how investigations partly enclosed seas established that tidal friction in the ocean would affect the rotation of the earth's rotation. The length of the day would continue to increase until it was equal to about 47 of our present days, when the earth would always turn the same face to the moon just as the moon now always turned the same face towards the earth. —Banffshire Journal.

Population Of The Reich

Is Now 73,600,000. Not Including Bohemia And Moravia

The German Government announced that its recent census showed the population of Germany to be 73,600,000, not including Memel Land or the protectorate of Bohemia-Moravia. The census counted 38,800,000 males and 40,800,000 females.

A census of Memel Land is to be taken soon and it is expected to raise the population to 79,800,000. The official German news agency, DNB, said the addition of 6,800,000 inhabitants of Bohemia and Moravia, taken over after the breakup of Czechoslovakia, gave greater Germany a population of about 86,600,000.

For Eastern Europe, besides only Belgium, The Netherlands, England and Italy, show a higher density of population," DNB said. "According to these population figures the Reich is the most populous nation of Europe after Soviet Russia."

(The population of the Soviet Union, according to an official estimate in 1934, was 168,000,000.)

The announcement said population density had increased from 332.2 inhabitants per square mile in 1933 to 352.3 and that the population of the old Reich excluding the Saar, Austria, Sudetenland, Bohemia, Moravia and Memel Land had increased about 3,200,000 or more than four per cent, since 1933.

Dentists On Wheels

Cars Operated In England To Look After School Children

British teeth are said to be the worst in the world. Prosperity, it is found, is the enemy of good teeth. The richer the people the softer the food they eat and soft food is a food that eats and soft food is a food that makes men bite because its jaws keep his gums in good condition, and so preserves his teeth.

To protect British children from the evil results of too much soft food, surgeries on wheels have been adopted by the school dentists in Sussex, Essex, Hampshire, Norfolk, Nottingham, and Northumberland. There are 26 of these dental cars operating. In Norfolk, the pioneer country, 9,000 children received treatment last year. The dental trailer costs about £250 and can be drawn by a 14 h.p. car. It is roomy enough to hold the dentist, his assistant, the young patient and a parent or other guardian. Electricity can be drawn from the school mains.—London Times.

Farming in Germany

Flight Of Agricultural Workers From Land Has Become Acute

The flight of agricultural workers from the land has become almost a problem in Germany that the Government has been forced to take measures to forbid agricultural workers to change their profession. Thus the freedom of the agricultural workers with regard to change of residence has been severely limited, and it has even been laid down that a member of a peasant farming family owning a farm may only work on other farms after obtaining official permission. It is estimated that since 1935 German agriculture has lost less than 650,000 labourers through flight from the land. This loss of labour has especially affected the small farmers. Enterprises with five to 20 hectares of land, that is the majority of the small and middling farmers, have lost 30 per cent of their workers over the age of 18 years.

Greater South Africa

Plans For Transfer Of Territories Which Would Double Present Area

The South African government is considering scheme for transfer of territories which would double the area of the country.

Negotiations are proceeding between the British Dominions office and the Union's department of external affairs for transfer of three protectorates, Bechuanaland, Basutoland and Swaziland, at present governed by British commissioners.

The three territories which lie on the borders of the union have a total population of 1,000,000, of which 98 per cent is black.

Recognition For Canadian

Canadian Officer In Command Of Royal Air Force In Egypt

Air Commodore Raymond Collishaw, formerly of British Columbia, has been promoted and ordered to commanding a new group formed in the Middle East command of the Royal Air Force and known as the Egypt group, with headquarters at Cairo, Egypt.

The Canadian officer attained the rank of air commodore—corresponding to a brigadier in the army—April 1. He is 45 and joined the Royal Naval Air Service in January, 1916. Subsequently he became one of the most distinguished pilots in the Dunkirk sector in the closing years of the Great War.

Collishaw holds second place among British Empire pilots for flying hours during the Great War. He was credited with 60. He was mentioned four times in despatches and was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, the Distinguished Flying Cross and bar, and French and Russian decorations.

A Most Welcome

A few weeks ago a company of soldiers was transferred from the East to sunny California—arriving in the midst of the rainy season.

The commander of the company, making a night tour of the camp, was challenged by a sentry who had been standing at his post for two hours in a driving rain.

"Who's there?" called the sentry.

"Friend," replied the C.O.

"Welcome to our mist," said the sentry.

Recent Stirring Days

Romantic Life On The Prairies With Coming Of Early Setters

The scent of old prairie camp fires and almost forgotten tales crept into the convention hall of the Saskatchewan branch of the Canadian Postmasters' Association at Moose Jaw, when W. H. Stephen, Viceroy, newly elected vice-president, told delegates the story of a famous man of the west, Jean Louis Legare, postmaster at Willowbunch until his death in 1917.

Mr. Stephen told the story as related to him by his father, many years ago. It dealt with the stirring days of the white man's first early encroachment of the Blackfoot country. He connected it with the post roads through Jean Louis Legare, a man the Saskatchewan postmasters two governments as a "man among calling."

It was Legare, a Quebec-born Frenchman, who arrived at Wood Mountain in the '60s of the past century. Threading his lonely way across the prairies he established himself as a trader of high reputation among the Indians.

Many wonderful experiences were his during his romantic life on the prairie but it was following the massacre of General Custer's men at Little Big Horn by the revengeful Sioux he came into recognition by two governments as a "man among men."

When all offers of the United States governments failed to induce Sitting Bull and his followers to return to the north of the country, and when Canadian Indians were growing restless at the invasion of the Sioux on their hunting grounds, it was to Legare both governments appealed for assistance.

He was the only white man Sitting Bull would trust to investigate Washington's offer of amnesty. Legare journeyed to Washington and returned with the American terms, Sitting Bull accepted and peace was restored.

When reward was offered for his services Legare thought only of his beloved prairie and he requested the American government to plow a fireguard from the east and west ends of Willow Bunch lake to join the fireguard on the American side of the boundary.

The fireguard was plowed and for years after it remained there as a symbol of the treaty of Sitting Bull and Legare.

Later, the United States government gave Legare $5,000 to offset some $8,000 he had spent in caring for American Indians while they were in Canada. He died in 1917—years after the passing of the old west—when he was postmaster of Willow Bunch.

His stories are still recalled by two men, both of whom knew him well. They are Frank Bellfield, former postmaster of Willow Bunch, and W. J. Matherwell, now director of postal service, Moose Jaw.

Work By Lantern Light

Scheme To Halt Activities Of Beaver Not A Success

The roadmaster on the Brule subdivision, Canadian National Railways, recently had "beaver trouble". These busy animals were partially blocking drainage at a culvert. An employee suggested hanging a lantern at the culvert at night to frighten the animals away. The roadmaster thought it was a good idea. Next morning he inspected the culvert, finding that beavers had apparently put on a night shift, for they had twice as much work as usual. The lantern plan was abandoned.

SHOW OF FORCE BY BRITAIN IN THE PRESENT CRISIS

London.—Great Britain launched a series of moves to strengthen the British-French front and at the same time remove doubts as to the course it will follow should new efforts be made to change the map of Europe.

These moves included:

1. The launching of a bill in the House of Commons setting up a fund estimated at $234,000,000 to promote export of munitions and raw materials for the defense requirements of such countries as Poland, Roumania, Greece and Turkey.

2. Announcement the continent would see a sample of British air power when 52 Royal Air Force planes go to Paris for the Bastille Day exercises.

3. Announcement a number of air force reserves would be called up during the next three or four months as a test mobilization exercise.

The government's export credit scheme is an enlargement of one already in operation. At the present time the board of trade has the power to sanction export credits up to $75,000,000 for straight commercial transactions and $10,000,000 for those which must be judged on political consideration rather than commercial merits.

The $10,000,000 fund was established primarily to help China buy munitions and this trade will not be diminished.

In effect the government proposes to increase the £10,000,000 fund to £60,000,000 providing £50,000,000 in new capital for the peace bloc allies.

The £60,000,000 does not include the interest charges. Some of the contracts may run as long as 10 and 15 years and the terms of the legislation provide that the interest shall not be deducted from the capital amount of the fund. In other words the whole amount must be spent on goods.

Board of trade officials estimated the interest may thus add as much as £40,000,000.

Allotment of the money has not been completed but Poland, Czechoslovakia and Roumania will get the largest appropriations from the order. Poland getting perhaps £20,000,000. Other countries which may get smaller amounts are Greece, Egypt, Iraq, Finland and Sweden. New Zealand will receive a small credit to be used in establishing an aircraft industry.

Germans Leave Italy

Population Of Southern Tyrol Has Begun Exodus

Berlin.—Exodus of a large section of the German-speaking population of Southern Tyrol from Italy into Germany has begun and will continue for weeks to come, official circles said.

The 5,000 Tyroleans who have thus far entered Germany constitute the advanced guard of thousands more who, it is expected, will gradually be absorbed into the labor ranks of the Reich. Germany has for some time experienced an acute labor shortage.

It was not revealed, however, what proportion of the 150,000 German-speaking natives of the Southern Tyrol will be repatriated.

Pensions For British M.P.'s

Measure Is Presented In House For Creation Of Fund

London.—Prime Minister Chamberlain presented a bill to the House of Commons for creation of a pension fund to aid needy ex-members of the lower house and their widows.

Each member of parliament would pay an annual sum of £12 ($56) out of his parliamentary salary. In no case would pensions exceed £150 yearly to former members, and £125 to members' widows.

Heavy Gold Reserves

Washington.—The federal reserve board said gold reserves of Great Britain and France are 28 times greater than those of Germany and Italy. In a survey of gold stocks and the movements of the metals in recent months, the board disclosed the gold reserves of the two democratic powers total about $6,215,000,000 compared with $22,000,000 held by Italy and Germany.

To Visit Belgium

King George And Queen Elizabeth Will Cross Channel On Oct. 24

London.—King George and Queen Elizabeth, recently returned from Canada and the United States, announced they had accepted an invitation to visit Belgium from October 24 to 27.

A formal palace announcement said the King and Queen had received the invitation with "much satisfaction" and had accepted "great pleasure."

The visit will be in return for one paid by Leopold, King of the Belgians, to London in November, 1937.

The visit to Belgium is expected to demonstrate anew Anglo-Belgian friendship, and recall the war ties which bound Britain so closely to the little country lying just across the English Channel.

Formal invitation to visit the Belgian capital was tendered by King Leopold some time ago. According to earlier reports, King George and Queen Elizabeth will arrive in Antwerp, October 24, aboard a British warship, and inspect the Lido International Exposition before returning to England.

Holiday Victims

More Than 600 Deaths Recorded In U.S. During July Celebration

New York.—More than 600 persons died violently in the United States during the four-day Fourth of July holiday—an increase over the number of casualties during the holiday last year. There were indications that the final total would be the greatest of recent years.

Paradoxically, it was a safe and sane fourth as far as fireworks were concerned. Only three persons were killed by exploding fireworks compared with 25 last year. Hundreds were injured.

A nation-wide survey showed that at least 633 were killed, compared with 595 last year. Automobile accidents accounted for 281 deaths, 158 drowned and 194 lost their lives in falls, homicides, fires and railroad and airplane wrecks.

The most ironic death was that of Elmer E. Johnson, 26, president of the secretary of the National Safety Council. He was killed when his automobile skidded off a road near Ludington, Michigan. He had been studying to become a safety engineer.

Trade Revival

Armaments Held Responsible For Improved Conditions, Says German Bank

Berlin.—"Gigantic new armaments" were held responsible for economic revival in Europe by the Reich Kredit Gesellschaft, one of Berlin's largest banks, in a mid-year analysis of world economy.

This was said to be true of France and Great Britain as well as Germany.

Although the armaments industry is stimulating the world's markets by demanding raw war materials, the bank said that nevertheless certain developments were exercising a stout drag on world economy.

It cited international indebtedness, "especially regulation" of which must be emphasized again and again as an important precondition for world economic operation." Other factors noted were the world credit market and poor distribution of gold with more than 60 per cent in the United States.

The survey said Germany would continue "with increased energy" to foster her barter system of trade.

Toronto.—Controller D. F. J. Conroy announced that the civic north-Ontario development committee will make a special survey in the near future of the advisability of urging development of the large lignite coal deposits near Blacksmith Falls to absorb Toronto's unemployed.

It was further announced the committee, a sub-committee of the civic employment committee, will study the feasibility of encouraging Canadian pottery industries to make use of large unlocated clay deposits in northern Ontario.

Will Not Discuss Conflict

Britain's Talks To Japan Limited To Tientsin Matter Only

Tokyo.—A Japanese spokesman reiterated a demand that Great Britain co-operate with Japan, while Sir Robert Craigie, the British ambassador, declared Britain's attitude toward the Sino-Japanese conflict would not be discussed in forthcoming conversations with Tokyo.

Sir Robert indicated the talks would be limited to the Tientsin controversy. Japanese wishes notwithstanding.

Sir Robert expressed moderate optimism about the possible outcome of the arbitration negotiations, but he warned "I believe if forceful tactics are attempted a solution will be impossible; they might on the contrary, lead to catastrophe."

These latest royal "treasures" have been lent by the King, together with more historic exhibits from Windsor castle, to form part of a special display by the Royal school in the Windsor great park, where the King's employees send their children.

ARRANGE CREDITS FOR PURCHASE OF WAR MATERIALS

London.—The Daily Mail (Independent) said that powers to make trade and defence credits totalling about £150,000,000 (£702,000,000) to boost the war preparedness of Poland, Roumania, Turkey and Greece, whom Great Britain has given guarantees, are to be sought from Parliament "without delay".

This was decided at a cabinet meeting, the newspaper said.

A Polish financial mission has been in London three weeks to negotiate for the purchase of war materials.

The Daily Express (Ind.) said credits planned for Poland would be better spent in Canada, Newfoundland and Australia for armament factories.

"Soon you will be leading big sums of money to Poland," the newspaper told its readers. "It will not be used for the building of planes and the production of munitions or the digging of trenches. It will go to pay the salaries of officers and men already mobilized."

"Why not send this money to Canada and Australia to build armament factories there? That would provide us with an inexhaustible supply of arms and ammunitions. There is Newfoundland, too... and in Newfoundland munitions works would be free from air attack."

It has been generally expected the commission's report would have some bearing on the general election of one held in two years ago, but it might possibly provide no basis. The intention is to call a conference between the provinces and the Dominion to study the report.

Danzig Protection

Protest Against German Military Activities In Free City

London.—Great Britain, France and Poland, official circles reported, are considering diplomatic action in Danzig in protest against German military activities in the Free City.

Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons:

"His Majesty's government will not fail to take any steps which may seem to them necessary and adequate to make their attitude absolutely clear."

This was in reply to a suggestion by Vyvyan Adams, Conservative, that obstructs her program of creating this new order, the premier said.

Great Britain was a particular target of the statements not only because of the present dispute at Tientsin, where Japanese are blockading the British and French concessions, but because of the British policy in China which, it is claimed here, has developed into outright assistance to General Chiang-Kai-Shek.

"Perfect comprehension by Great Britain of Japan's Far Eastern position is, therefore, the sine qua non condition for settlement," said the premier.

"The incident occurred at Tientsin. Therefore the problems which will be discussed will be limited to Tientsin."

U.S. Builds Short Wave Station To Offset Propaganda

Schenectady, N.Y.—United States engineers are testing a short wave "Big Bertha" for action against Germany in the "war" for control of the South America radio lanes.

The "Big Bertha," the United States' first 100 kilowatt short wave station, is the brain child of researchers at General Electric Company, a short wave pioneer. The giant station will be ready to fire a verbal "news barrage" at Facist propaganda within two weeks, engineers predicted.

CLASH BETWEEN JAP AND SOVIET FORCES ON BORDER

Shanghai.—Foreigners arriving from Manchukuo said hospitals in Harbin were "filled to overflowing" with Japanese soldiers wounded in fighting Soviet Russian and Mongolian forces along the border between Manchukuo and Outer Mongolia.

Japanese official sources said Japan suffered "heavy casualties" in fighting between Japanese and Soviet infantry forces. (The Japanese army holds and defends Manchukuo. Soviet Russia has a similar tie with Outer Mongolia.)

Japanese official sources said Japan suffered "heavy casualties" in fighting between Japanese and Soviet infantry forces. (The Japanese army holds and defends Manchukuo. Soviet Russia has a similar tie with Outer Mongolia.)

Japan said its airmen shot down 53 Soviet planes in a "great awe-inspiring battle" involving 150 planes. The Japanese indicated they suffered no losses.

(There was no report made public in Moscow of such a battle. The Soviet capital has confirmed the dates of some of the previous battles announced by the Japanese, but all Russian announcements have claimed Soviet victories.)

Japanese military sources said results of recent Manchukuo-Mongolian border fighting have reinforced Japan's confidence in her ability to defeat Russia if war should develop. They said both their ground and air forces were superior to the Russian.

They said, however, Japan had "no intention of expanding the border clashes into war" as long as the Russians refrain from attacking strategic points."

The Japanese army in Manchukuo said 363 enemy planes had been shot down in this border warfare since May 20 in addition to planes destroyed on the ground in a June 27 air raid on the Mongolian air base at Tamak. At the time of this raid it was said 98 Soviet and Mongolian craft were destroyed.

Moscow.—A Soviet communiqué said "about 800" Japanese-Manchukuoan were killed and 45 Japanese planes shot down during heavy fighting the last three days on the border between Manchukuo and Russia.

The communiqué distributed by Tass, official news agency, said Mongolian-Soviet forces lost 100 men killed, 200 wounded and nine planes.

JAPAN INTENDS TO BUILD A NEW ORDER IN ASIA

Tokyo.—Premier Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma, marking the second anniversary of the Japanese-Chinese war, warned that Great Britain will build a "new order in east Asia."

In a statement concerning the Japanese-Chinese hostilities which began two years ago, he alluded to the forthcoming Anglo-Japanese talks here over the Tientsin blockade, and said:

"True settlement of the pending questions will never be reached if the negotiations are not based on a profound understanding of construction by Japan of a new order in east Asia."

If Great Britain refuses to admit this fundamental point for Japan, there will remain no other course but to suspend the talks."

Japan "must crush any power" that obstructs her program of creating this new order, the premier said.

Great Britain was a particular target of the statements not only because of the present dispute at Tientsin, where Japanese are blockading the British and French concessions, but because of the British policy in China which, it is claimed here, has developed into outright assistance to General Chiang-Kai-Shek.

"Perfect comprehension by Great Britain of Japan's Far Eastern position is, therefore, the sine qua non condition for settlement," said the premier.

"The incident occurred at Tientsin. Therefore the problems which will be discussed will be limited to Tientsin."

Soviet Claim Victory

Report Rout Of Regular Japanese Army Units

Moscow.—Soviet-Russian-Outer Mongolian forces were reported to have gained a great victory over a Japanese-Manchukuoan enemy on the remote Khalkha river battlefield in despatches published in Moscow newspapers.

The battle was said to have lasted from July 2 to 5, ending in the rout of Japanese regular army units and their allies which had crossed the river into Outer Mongolian territory. Russia said it was the largest battle yet fought in the conflict which has raged intermittently since May 11.

(Russia and her protectorate, Outer Mongolia, hold that the border runs east of the Khalkha, which flows north into Lake Bor. Japan and her protectorate, Manchukuo, insist the river is the real border.)

Amplifying a Soviet communiqué estimating Japanese-Manchukuoan losses at 800 killed and Russian-Mongolian casualties at 100-killed and 200 wounded, the Moscow press described a vast encounter in which tanks, aeroplanes, artillery and infantry forces were engaged.

The Moscow press version of the battle said the Mongol-Soviet artillery put 50 Japanese tanks out of commission and silenced eight guns, while Mongol-Soviet planes and anti-aircraft batteries shot down 45 Japanese planes.

The Mongol-Soviet forces reported they lost nine planes and that 23 tanks and armored cars were disabled.
